The years which a person spends in school are a time of great contrast and growth. A young boy on the elementary school playground ages, faces life and becomes a man. A little girl with her array of dolls and tea sets grows up and leaves high school a young woman. A child's first day at school, a boy's first football game, the Queen of Hearts, the prom and finally the climax of a student's school career . . . graduation—all these are events to be remembered and cherished by every student. These are the things which make school life such a great adventure. This book, then, is a record of this adventure.

Katy Elementary School

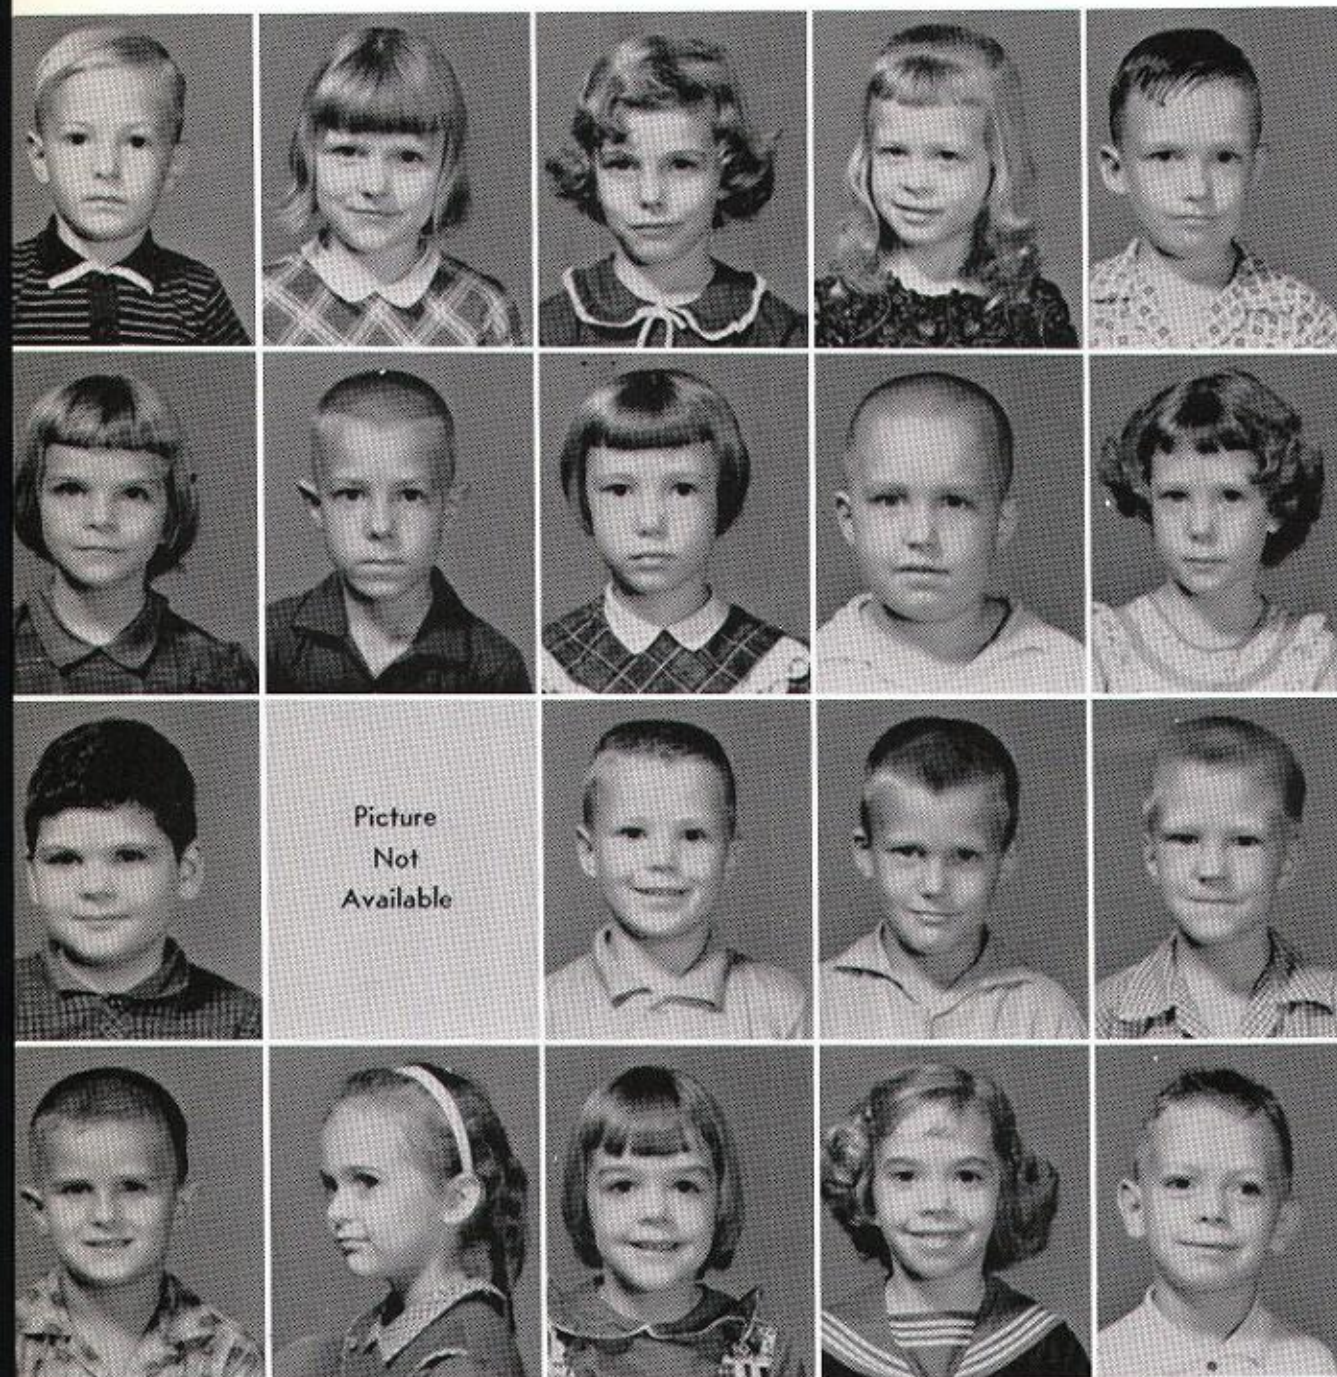

The students you see at the left are students from kindergarten through the sixth grade. The rhythm of morning arrival and afternoon departure is a pattern followed through the days of school. The shadows you see also make a pattern. This pattern, if it could be unfolded, you would see these future citizens as presidents, doctors, teachers, preachers, homemakers, architects, farmers, astronauts . . .

Kindergarten

St. Valentine's Day in the kindergarten was an exciting experience this year. Each child prepared his own box and when it was brought to school it was given a number to represent a post office box. The valentines were distributed according to numbers and when each child opened his box he was surprised to find so many treats!

Kindergarten

Easter is always a happy time for the children in kindergarten. The egg tree which results from the reading of Katherine Milhous' book The Egg Tree causes excitement and interest among these five-year olds.

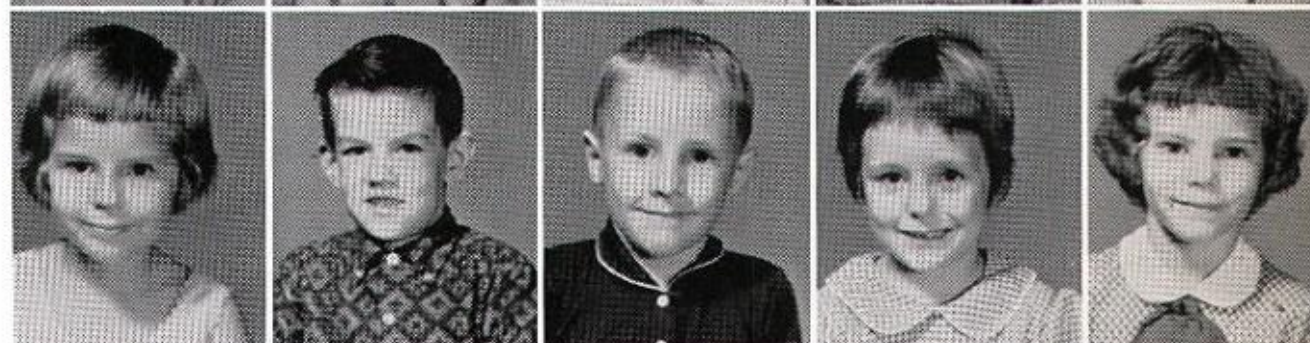

This year the room mothers hid each child's basket containing his own Easter eggs. Then each child had to find his own basket. Refreshments and surprise treats were served in the room.

First Grade

The seasons and seasonal holidays always provide many interesting activities. In the fall the many types of science collections gave every child an opportunity to contribute. Also with the help of the children they dressed up "Bob," our life size scarecrow. Winter time made an ideal time to observe weather changes. Early spring brought us many robins to watch and to write about. On Valentine Day, each child was given an opportunity to practice being a postman, who had to sort and distribute his Valentines.

We worked hard and long, and we played the same way. We came with question marks in our eyes, but we are learning with a shining look of satisfaction. We feel that our mission has been reasonably well accomplished. We have learned reading, writing, and 'rithmetic. Also we have had our usual parties at Easter and Christmas.

School bells rang and into room 107 went 23 bright-eyed 6 year olds. The year has been an interesting one. We think we are mastering the "3 R's" and the room mothers added to our work and play, the highlight, no doubt, was the Easter Egg Hunt out at the Gene Andrew home.

This room enjoyed the Christmas and Easter parties as well as treats given by the room mothers, of whom Mrs. William E. Bryan was the room mother chairman. Other highlights were: making a weather chart; an Easter egg tree; watching moth eggs develop through the different stages; and doing special projects with our Social Studies units.

This has been a busy year for us. We have read many books, learned to spell, and now are toiling with cursive writing. We discovered that counting money, telling time, and learning the parts of things wasn't very easy. We did take time out to have a party at Christmas, Valentine, and Easter.

On September 4th, when we found our names on the door and enrolled in Busy Corners, we knew it would be a busy and interesting year. We decided to try for perfect attendance the first six-weeks. We had 99.16 per-cent and had a picnic as a reward. A highlight in the winter was our Christmas Party given by our room mothers. The highlight of spring was our field trip to Houston. It was a busy year for the children in Busy Corners.

This year our class had many varied and interesting experiences. The goose eggs, decorated by one of our families for Easter, were both beautiful and interesting. Our class observed the stages of growth in a bean plant from bean to mature plant by having them in wet cotton. The fish aquarium, bought with P.T.A. room prizes, has proved very interesting.

The class especially enjoyed the holiday parties this year. Easter was an exciting time of painting eggs and making The Egg Tree. In addition to enjoying the reading of many books and stories, we made collections of leaves, shells, plants, and rocks. Science experiments were always a highlight. We watched a huge tadpole develop into a frog.

The fourth graders have been enthusiastic about our varied art experiences this year. They especially enjoyed taking home their ceramic pieces, which Mr. Schmalz fired for us in the kiln. The magic of changing a piece of clay into a beautifully colored dish was a new experience. We also did a little landscape painting "on the spot." We took all our painting equipment, went out under the trees, chose something of interest, and painted it.

Fourth Grade

In our section of the fourth grade, we have strived to build interest in the geography and science programs in order to make learning more interesting. Since we take an imaginary trip around the world in our study of geography, we have kept a continuous project of collecting or building some object representative of each country visited. This has been on display in our room all year while we added to the collection. Special reports on various phases of life has also helped stimulate interest and learning.

We also experimented with higher math. On page 130 you will see Beth Stanberry, Pat DiIorio, Sue Bacon, Bob Johnson, Clyde Breaux and Joyce Hanks doing some of the experiments.

Two plays were written and dramatized by the class.

Special Education

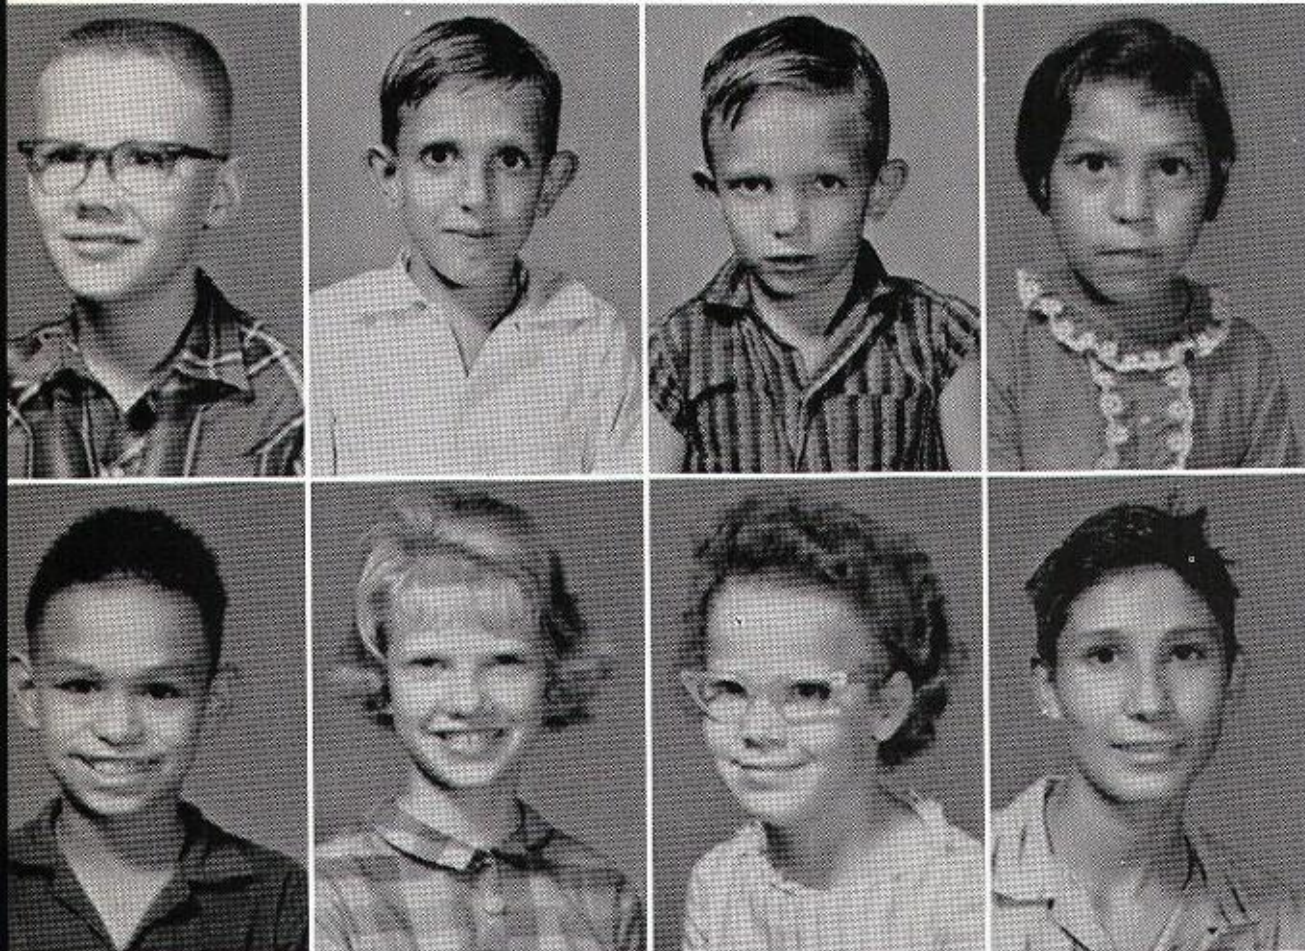

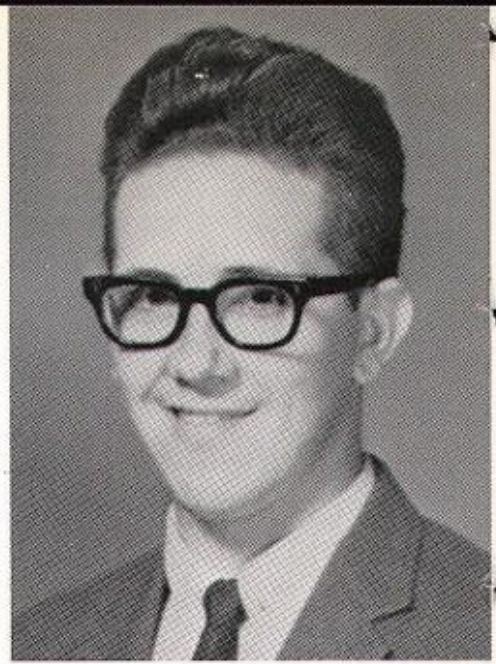

The Special Education class has three events which were of special interest to the children: the Halloween Carnival, the Christmas party, and the Easter Party.

The Christmas party was significant in that the P.T.A. gave gifts to those children of the class who otherwise would have received very few presents at Christmas.

The Easter party is always a success because it involves an outdoor egg hunt and picnic. And, naturally, what child can resist cookies and punch in the shade of a tree.
